

Editorial

COVID-19 has caused a grave impact on almost every society. Not only were that but because of its rampant spread many countries forced to stop international travelling and detention in home. Also, the lockdown has been recognised as the only method to control the spread of the pandemic and almost every country has adopted this method. Amidst the lockdown in Indian society, multiple issues related to social, educational, economical, political, agricultural, psychological levels and many more have been noticed which has created the distressing impact on the lives of the people. Impact of COVID-19 has been numerous and not only limited to society at large. On the perspective of the economy, both rural and urban have been impacted adversely. The most immediate concern of the migrant workers who depend on daily earnings, they barely have savings which they could spend during any emergency. Apart from migrant workers, gig workers have been gone through a similar issue though it has not got much attention. Because of COVID-19, the world came to stagnant position, so the online platform which leads to the economic hardship of this section of the urban economy. Moving from the economy, the impact of COVID-19 on education has been cruel and its repercussions may be seen in the upcoming future. As per the report of World Bank titled "Beaten or broken: Informality and COVID", there will be the lifelong impact of school closures on the productivity of this generation of students. Children being out of school for long times might forget some facts as well as impact their learning capacity. With any pandemic or any situation may impact the society at large comes the problem of psychological trauma. India is recognised as land of diversity and therefore, the impact of COVID-19 is diverse and countless. It has been truly said that "crisis gives birth to the changes which were pending for many years", same has happened during the time of COVID-19. Things have been changed to meet the needs of the society what the government were trying hard to implement from past many years. At this stage, we should stand up again and support each other. We should have to adopt values enshrined in our Preamble of the Constitution i.e. "Equality, Fraternity, Integrity" to make India a better place on earth for its citizens and the world.

Debashis Sarkar
Editor-in-Chief